Ore was displayed around town last evening which, if it comes from the Elkhorn district, indicates more than anything that has been brought to light yet the riches of the gaw district. The samples, some of which are very large, are pronounced by mining men here to be unquestionably the richest samples yet brought over from the Elkhorn. They are the soft carbonates and chlorides, the latter showing in good quantities indicating high values in silver. No assays have yet been taken, but competent judges say the ore speaks for itself.

Harvey Critchiow and Victor Lichter, the discoverers, say the ore comes from a four-inch seam which shows in the outeroppings of the ledge which runs through their group of four claims, the Nabob Extension.

As an evidence of the permanency of the ore body recently discovered on the 1000-foot level of the American Flag, the operating force continues to holst ore in quantities and the assays which occasion-ally become public information are truels sensational.
